Phoenix Autotech, Abbey Wood

Phoenix Autotech are based in Wilton Road, Abbey Wood, and provide MOTs, car services, cambelts, diagnostics and much more. Owner Grzegorz Chacinski said: "We welcome customers from everywhere and it's nice to see local residents coming in to get repairs as well. We offer a 10 per cent discount auto services and repairs when Greenwich One Card holders spend £50 or more. The new card will allow holders to get an even better deal and it will also help local businesses such as ourselves."

THE royal borough is giving residents the perfect Christmas present this year – but the new Greenwich One Card doesn't have to stay wrapped under the tree for another two weeks.

Now available online completely free of charge, the new card is your passport to all-in-one leisure and library services, as well as hundreds of deals from participating local businesses this Christmas.

In the first week alone, more than 2,700 people have signed up or switched to the One Card.

Pamela Wright, who's a regular at the Eltham Centre, said: "It's great that the two services of leisure and libraries are linked. The new One Card is great news, as it now saves me rustling around in my bag to find my library card."

Almost 100 local businesses are now signed up to the Greenwich One Card scheme, meaning residents can get the best deal on their Christmas shopping by buying local. There are great deals and discounts on everything from Christmas trees, presents and gifts – to wine, fine foods and fruit & veg.

The Greenwich One Card – which will gradually replace the old Greenwich Card – is also a passport to the comprehensive range of leisure and library services provided by the council across the royal borough. That means local people can help keep their new year resolutions to get fitter by visiting their local gyms and pools, or pop into a library to work on their CV and secure a brand new job for 2016.

Cllr Denise Scott-McDonald, cabinet member for culture, creative industries and community wellbeing, said: "It is fantastic to see so many signing up for our brand new Greenwich One Card, which is our Christmas present to residents. Many residents will be out doing their Christmas shopping at the moment and getting a One Card is a great way to save money as so many of our local businesses are offering deals and discounts to card holders. It is all part of the council's commitment to supporting small businesses in the borough as well as helping residents save money in the current economic climate.

"Local people deserve state-of-the art leisure and library facilities and our launch of the One Card is also part of our ongoing strategy to provide this."

I am excited about the scheme to be really positive for local business like ours. I'm looking forward to seeing members at the Village Green Grocers in the coming weeks."

New crackdown on betting shop crime and anti-social behaviour

by Dan Stephens

TOWN centre locals are spending almost £50,000 a week gambling on one armed bandits.

Now the council is stepping up its efforts to tackle gambling related problems and protect vulnerable residents by launching a new pilot scheme in General Gordon Square, Woolwich. Betwatch will see the council working with the Met Police and local betting shops to share information related to crime and anti-social behaviour.

The scheme will coordinate efforts to prevent and detect gambling related crime, and apprehend and prosecute offenders. It also aims to make customers and betting shop staff feel safer in and around local betting shops.

The move comes after recent figures which show that Woolwich town centre currently hosts 48 fixed odds betting terminals (FOBTs) which are making an average of £1000 profit a week each.

Punters can place bets of £100 a time on the casino-style betting machines and the council is also part of a larger campaign to reduce the stakes on FOBTs. Earlier this year it joined a group of local

Neighbourhood reps have their say

COMMUNITY groups had the chance to have their say, and quiz borough councillors and council officers, at a recent scrutiny meeting held at Woolwich Town Hall.

It was a meeting of the council's community safety and environment scrutiny panel, held to discuss a report on the council's street care and cleaning service, formerly known as Cleansweep. Twelve representatives from local housing panels and environmental groups were invited and asked to voice their concerns.

Cllr Gary Parker, the panel chair, said: "It was a very positive meeting. People were able to say what they wanted, and they asked about a wide range of issues, such as the action being taken on dog fouling, smoking outside public buildings, littering and street cleaning -- all the different parts of people's local environment."

"Community groups do have criticisms of the council. All they want is to live in a better environment, and there are always things that we improve. So it was good to hear their views."

"Generally, the reps said they thought the council did a good job. Everyone was very happy with the outcome. These groups want to be listened to. We did listen, and council officers found it very useful to hear from people at the grass roots."

Community groups who went along welcomed the opportunity for the two-way dialogue. Brenda Taggart, chair of Charlton Central Residents' Association, said: "It was a very positive meeting, in which I genuinely got a sense we were being listened to. What is going right is recycling, separating out waste, and using modern technology to reduce costs, such as the Fix My Street scheme. We raised a number of issues that needed attention, such as enforcement and the declining number of prosecutions for littering and flytipping. The council are aware of these issues, but it's what they can do about them at a time of declining budgets."

And Alison Cullen, chair of the Charlton and Carnbrook Tenants Panel, said: "It was a useful opportunity to put our points across, such as schoolchildren chucking litter on the pavements and people fly-tipping when the roadsweeping bags are left in the street. We were able to tell them that we've seen these sorts of problems, and ask if they could fix them. It was good to give our views, and to get feedback from the council officers."

Cllr Jackie Smith, the council's cabinet member for community safety and environment, was also at the meeting. She said: "This was an excellent opportunity for our residents to raise concerns and suggestions involving their neighbourhoods. I would like to thank everyone who came along and contributed."

HERE TO HELP: Cllr Denise Scott-McDonald meets health advisers in General Gordon Square as part of the local World AIDS Day campaign

Friendly health advice

GREENWICH Sexual Health Week took place last month with the royal borough also marking World AIDS Day on December 1.

Throughout the week, a series of promotional activities and advice sessions took place across the royal borough with information stalls offering free and confidential HIV testing, registration to online sexual health screening and advice.

Cabinet member Cllr Denise Scott-McDonald visited a stall to show her support for Greenwich Sexual Health Week and World AIDS Day.

The METRO Charity led a campaign to raise funds for their hardship fund, which supports its most vulnerable service users. Local people are also reminded that the royal borough is the first local authority in the country to offer residents a home testing service online - making it easy and quick to test for sexually transmitted infections.

Betwatch pilot scheme launched in Woolwich authorities calling on all party leaders to restrict the stakes on FORTs to just £2 in line with other gaming machines on the high street.

Cllr Jackie Smith the council's cabinet member for community safety and environment said: "The council's new Betwatch scheme will make a significant contribution to our ongoing efforts in reducing crime and anti-social behaviour in Woolwich town centre, building a safer community in the long term.

"High stakes FORTs can have extremely detrimental effects on both individuals and the local community and betting shops are also linked a range of other crimes including money laundering.

"The council will continue to work to regulate betting shops and encourage responsible gambling in order to protect residents from harmful effects of addiction as part of our anti-poverty strategy. We are also committed to safeguarding local areas from the risk of deprivation and hope that this initiative will eventually create more pride and confidence in the area and encourage greater economic investment."

Ian Perrygrove from the Gambling Commission told GT: "Betting shop operators, police forces and councils can play a key role in reducing and preventing crime in betting shops. We recognise the strength of this scheme and the benefits of a joint approach and fully support the work of the royal borough in taking steps to reduce criminality and anti-social behaviour through its Betwatch scheme."

Reminder of support for domestic abuse victims

by Dan Stephens

VICTIMS of domestic violence are being reminded of the help available in the run up to the festive season when cases of abuse tend to peek.

The council is reminding residents who are experiencing abuse – and those who are seeing it inflicted on someone else – about the range of advice and support available as part of its ongoing campaign to tackle domestic violence.

By summer 2016 the royal borough will have invested £675,000 in the campaign designed to support victims and encourage perpetrators to get help.

Support services are co-ordinated under the Greenwich Domestic Violence and Abuse Service (GDVA) which works with a range of partnership organisations to help families move on from abusive and violent relationships. They include:

- the council-funded Domestic Violence Intervention Team (DVIT) based at Plumstead Police Station. The team provides an emergency response, follow-up support and directs victims to other organisations that can help. Additionally, it works with perpetrators who want to change their ways by directing them to services that can help.

- Housing for Women, a charity and housing association which last month celebrated 40 years of supporting women in London. The group has five refuges in the borough and runs a domestic violence helpline. Call the Housing for Women helpline on 0208 317 8273. (10am to 4pm, Mon-Fri). In an emergency always call 999.

- The Her Centre in Woolwich which supports more than 1,000 local women offering free and confidential advocacy, counselling, and advice as well as emergency housing to men and women victims. Call 020 3260 7772.

RAISING AWARENESS: a previous GT feature about the campaign member for community safety and environment said:

"Christmas should be a time where families enjoy spending time together but unfortunately we also see a rise in domestic violence over this period.

"I encourage victims to come forward and seek help from the range of services that the council provides. We also want everyone to know they can do something if they are worried about a friend, relative, neighbour or stranger who may be suffering domestic violence or abuse.

"The message is clear – the actions of those who engage in abusive and violent behaviour are damaging and totally unacceptable. The council is committed to standing alongside victims, giving them support while taking the strongest action against perpetrators."

NHS free care film

A FILM has been released to explain how the NHS decides if people with complicated or severe healthcare needs are eligible for free care and support.

The National Framework for NHS continuing healthcare outlines how some adults with specific requirements can receive fully funded care, but health experts admit that the process can appear long and complicated.

The film has been made by the NHS Greenwich Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) and its partner Enabled City to help people understand how the system works. Dr Ellen Wright, clinical chair of the CCG, said they hoped the film would help patients and their families: "We really do hope it will help people understand the policy better, and make the process of how the NHS makes decisions on NHS-funded care more transparent."

Hard hat heroines

GIRLS at Windrush Primary's Charlton campus are building a possible career option for when they are older.

It's all part of a scheme designed to help both girls and boys at the school in Woolwich Road think about non-traditional work options for when they finish school and plan their careers.

The girls were trying their hand at bricklaying, as part of a scheme to both tackle gender stereotypes at an early age, and also do their bit to help plug the skills' gap.

Windrush also hosted a delegation from Turkey, which wanted to see how the issue was being dealt with.

Display marks 50 years of the Eltham Society

A four star service

Inspection shows turnaround for youth offender programme

GREENWICH Youth Offending Service has become one of the top three in England after showing a strong improvement over the last four years.

A recent inspection of six key areas of the service gave the borough three and four star ratings in all categories.

The assessment puts Greenwich among the best, along with Trafford and Portsmouth youth offending services.

The Chief Inspector of Probation, Paul Wilson, described the improvement as a "step change in performance" since the last inspection in 2011.

The joint inspection was conducted by HM Inspectorate of Probation with colleagues from the criminal justice, social care, education and health inspectorates.

They found:

- They said staff were good at motivating young people to engage with their sentences and awarded the top four star rating.
- Work to reduce re-offending was awarded three stars, with inspectors noting the excellent education, training and employment services
- A strong partnership approach underpinned the work to protect the public and actual or potential, victims
- Work to protect children and reduce their vulnerability was characterised by thorough assessments
- There were effective governance and partnership arrangements in place with strong, strategic leadership.
- The management and delivery of interventions to reduce reoffending was satisfactory characterised by managers who acted "skillfully" and had access to good quality resources.

Cllr Miranda Williams, cabinet member for children's services, said: "This service plays a vital role in preventing young people from re-offending as well as protecting the public. The report is very welcome as it shows the progress that has been made in our Youth Offending Service."

Pickwick Papers is fab at forty

A FABRIC and wallpaper retailer rolled out the red carpet to celebrate 40 years in business.

Pickwick Papers on Nelson Road, Greenwich, first opened its doors to the public in 1975, and has earned a strong reputation as one of London's finest interior design shops, offering a vast range of fabrics and wallpapers including intricate, luxurious and exclusive designs.

The family business was started by Anthea Apps, who bought the shop which was formerly a hairdresser. Her daughter Julia Johnson, who has over 25 years' experience in interiors, took over the reins eight years ago.

Julia told GT: "It is a monumental achievement for our business to be able to celebrate 40 years. Our success is down to the hard work of our passionate staff and our wonderful customers who have trusted our advice and supported us for years. We have a close relationship with our customers and they become part of the family, we do home visits and take a real interest in their taste and what it is they want."

Nikki Pearson and Dao Ta are sales assistants at the fabric and paper emporium. Nikki said: "It is a really friendly place to work that is bursting with creativity. Working here has inspired me to start my own business in Greenwich Market."

Emma Jones, who owns a vintage furniture and fashion business in Hyde Vale, Greenwich, joined the celebrations. She said: "I have been a customer at Pickwick Papers for many years, it's a big part of the local community in Greenwich, and talking to Julia inspires me when it comes to my own business."

A for achievement

School wins London award

OFSTED inspectors rated it as outstanding, it gained Gold Club status from the mayor of London - and now Cherry Orchard Primary School has won a major award for its achievements.

The Charlton school was one of just four in London recognised in the Evening Standard School Awards last week.

Headteacher Maria Hill was presented with a cheque for £1,000 by Education Secretary Nicky Morgan after Cherry Orchard won the award for outstanding achievement in challenging circumstances.

Ms Hill said: "Governors, school staff, pupils and families are all immensely proud of this accolade. It encapsulates the shared belief within the school community, that all children will achieve success."

Almost all - 97 per cent - of pupils achieved the target level in their SATS tests last year and pupils make great progress between the ages of seven and 11. In January, Ofsted inspectors described the children's behaviour as "exemplary" and their achievements as "exceptional".

The school has a high number of children classed as disadvantaged, more than two thirds of pupils speak English as an additional language and a quarter have special educational needs.

The education secretary said: "Far from resting on their laurels, London schools continue to go from strength to strength, showing that someone's birth or background does not have to be a limit to potential."

No need to face w

WINTRY weather is usually fun and exciting for the kids, but it can be miserable and even dangerous for vulnerable or older people, particularly if they live alone. Dick Townsend-Smith looks at some of the support and advice available locally, and how to find it

EXTRA services and support are being laid on by the council for people likely to be at risk during the cold weather.

Over-60s, or those caring for a vulnerable person or having problems paying winter fuel bills could get help from the council's 'Stay Warm, Stay Safe' campaign. People with mental health problems, learning disabilities, physical or sensory impairments are also encouraged to contact the service on the Freephone hotline.

Residents are also encouraged to get in touch with Stay Warm Stay Safe if they have concerns about a friend or neighbour.

The campaign is being publicised via posters and leaflets in all the borough's GP surgeries and pharmacies. It was also due to be promoted at the Woolwich Winter Warmer last Saturday (December 5).

One elderly couple who took advantage of the Stay Warm, Stay Safe campaign were able to get advice on filling in the form for an attendance allowance, and now receive an extra £55.10 per week. They were also given details of local help they were previously unaware of, such as the Greenwich Handyperson Service, Dial-a-Ride and Taxicard. As they were struggling to pay their fuel costs over the winter, council staff were able to refer them to a partner organisation for further help.

Cllr David Gardner, the council's cabinet member for health, social care and public health, said: "The winter months can be a challenging time for older people and other vulnerable residents, and that is why we are providing a range of advice and support services to help people most at risk.

"Our support includes a benefits check to help residents find out whether they are entitled to financial help, as well as energy efficiency assessments to help residents keep their fuel bills down.

"I would encourage anyone who is concerned that they won't be able to keep warm this winter to contact the service for support. And people who have concerns about a friend or neighbour are urged to give us a call."

The scheme includes:

- a free room thermometer
- advice and help on keeping fuel bills down

- a benefit check by a Welfare Rights Service
- home fire safety visits by the London Fire Brigade
- an energy efficiency assessment
- advice on keeping active and healthy in the winter months
- advice on flu jabs.

● Call free on 0800 470 4831 to speak to the Stay Warm Stay Safe team or visit www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/staywarm

PARCEL PACKERS: Greenwich Foodbank volunteers and members of the New Wine Church in Woolwich, pack food hampers

Foodbank dishes up a toy treat

THE Greenwich Foodbank, which is run by volunteers, is including small toys and selection boxes of sweets for children with the Christmas parcels they distribute. Chief executive Alan Robinson says: "These have been donated to us by local primary schools as well as individuals. Schools also give us lots of donations over the harvest festival period, and that helps see us through over the Christmas and new year period as the number of people using the Foodbank at this time continues to grow."

The guide to support

A NEW feature is set to be added this month to the Greenwich Community Directory, the guide to local social care, health, wellbeing and advice services.

It is a self-checker to help people find out for themselves if they are likely to be eligible to receive support from social services. It also shows how people can organise help for themselves if they not eligible.

The directory has received 11,000 visits in its first six months from people seeking support and advice.

Cllr David Gardner, the council's cabinet member for health, social care and public health, said: "People can use this tool to state the areas of difficulty they are experiencing and it will tell them if they are likely to be eligible for support, or if not, how to arrange it for themselves. For those who are unable to go online, we are asking people to be 'good neighbours' and offer to do it for them.

● The directory is online at www.greenwichcommunitydirectory.org.uk and you can get help getting online in libraries

Stay warm

THE council has teamed up with Greenwich Clinical Commissioning Group to launch a national campaign to help people stay well over the cold months.

'Stay Well This Winter' is a national flu vaccination campaign for children which aims to get 10 million children aged 5-16 vaccinated for the first time, the year children will be eligible to get a flu vaccine, making it a key part of the council's winter-based vaccination programme.

Health help app

THE NHS Greenwich Clinical Commissioning Group has launched a new mobile and online service to help people understand where to go for treatment, especially when they need health care in a hurry, late at night or at the weekend. The Health Help Now app can be downloaded for free at www.healthhelpnow-nhs.net and helps people check their symptoms as well as showing which nearby services are open. Importantly, it will help people to know when to go to A&E, and when not to.

Find out more at www.healthhelpnow-nhs.net or search on your smart phone app store for 'health help now'.

MUSICAL TREATS: Martin Carthy takes to the stage again with Morrigan and the Mock Tudor Band

Martin, who received the BBC Radio Folk Award for Lifetime Achievement in 2013, was hugely popular when he played at the venue's St George's Day celebrations earlier this year.

With 10 solo albums to his name, he has played with musical greats such as Steele Span and Dave Swarbrick as well as with his wife Norma Waterson and daughter Eliza Carthy. He was appointed an MBE in 1998.

For the Wassail Night, Martin will be joined by Morrigan, a group of four musicians who sing traditional and contemporary songs a capella – without instrumental accompaniment.

The Mock Tudor Band will also take to the stage playing music from the 16th to 18th centuries on such instruments as crumhorns, hautboy and percussion from the period as well as the more familiar violins and recorders.

GFMA project manager Lousia Le

Marchand said: "Wassailing was traditionally held on Twelfth Night but nowadays tends to be a more broad celebration of Christmas with carol singing and festive music."

Doors open 7pm. Tickets £10 at www.wegotickets.com - booking is recommended.

What a big panto we have!

GREENWICH Theatre's tenth anniversary pantomime Red Riding Hood has been drawing in the crowds with its ever-popular combination of singing, dancing and hilarious one-liners.

Written by Andrew Pollard, who takes his traditional role as the Dame in the guise of Red Riding Hood's grandmother, the show runs until January 10.

Among the many delighted theatre-goers was Charlton Manor Primary School pupil, ten-year-old Melissa Billa, who wrote her own review:

"The pantomime was so good, it was the best one I have ever seen.

"I can't really pick a best bit because it was all so amazing, but if I had to choose it would be the 3D part and when the big bad wolf squirted water at us and when Granny Fanny dried us by throwing rolls of tissue paper.

"The theatre was the best, it was so brilliant, and I really recommend going to Greenwich Theatre because it's so worth it. I can't wait for more pantomimes to come and I'm definitely going to Red Riding Hood again with my family"

Times and dates of the panto vary - details are available on the theatre's website at www.greenwichtheatre.org.uk or call the box office on 020 8858 7755.

IMPORTANT NOTICE FOR ROYAL BOROUGH TENANTS WHO ARE MOVING

DON'T GET A BILL AFTER YOU LEAVE

Under the conditions of your tenancy agreement, you have a responsibility to leave your property in an acceptable state of repair. We may visit you to check this. If we consider your property is in an unacceptable condition, you may be prevented from moving or be recharged for work.

To avoid getting an unwelcome bill, follow these rules:

- Repair any damage caused to the property by you, your family or visitors to your home.
- Make good any changes you have made to your property e.g. put back any doors that you have removed.
- Make sure your garden is not overgrown and you have cleared all garden waste.
- Clear all your items from the inside and the outside of the property. This includes any loft space, external cupboards or sheds.
- Return all the keys to the Royal Borough's offices no later than midday on Monday (or Tuesday if it is a Bank Holiday). You will be charged a further week's rent if you do not return your keys on time.

If you leave repairs that are your responsibility, or items that require disposal you will be charged the cost of this work.

ABBEY Wood weightlifter Zoe Smith says she is facing the 2016 Olympic year with confidence and optimism after breaking two British records at the World Championships.

The 21-year-old Commonwealth Games gold medallist set the new records in the clean and jerk competition for the Women's 63kg group on November 25 at the tournament held in Houston, Texas.

Zoe's achievements helped Team GB achieve ninth place, their best World Championship placing since 2002. She also set a personal best of 97kg in the snatch discipline.

The young athlete is backed by the Greenwich Starting Blocks Trust, a charity launched by the royal borough to support aspiring young sports men and women with the costs of training and competing. Zoe, 21, was among guests at the recent Starting Blocks fundraising gala dinner at the O2 which has raised thousands of pounds to support more than 70 local athletes.

Zoe said: "I'm thrilled to have achieved new British records in Houston, especially leading into such an important Olympic year. I have felt in great form for a while and with a top ten finish here I'm ending the year on a real high and head towards Rio full of confidence and optimism."

Her performance will have taken her a step closer to being selected to join Team GB for the Olympic Games in Rio de Janeiro next summer.

Tommy Yule, British Weight Lifting performance director, said: "For Zoe to achieve a top 10 finish and compete with such confidence alongside the world's
